New Regulation (EU) 2023/988
(General Product Safety Regulation – GPSR)

Dear Sir or Madam

The new EU General Product Safety Regulation (GPSR) introduces new obligations for economic operators and additional requirements for consumer products. The regulation continues to ensure that only safe products will be placed on the EU market and has established new criteria for assessing the safety of products. It applies in particular to products that are not subject to a product-specific EU standard, such as toys, biocides, medicinal products, foodstuffs and aircraft. It comes into force on 13.12.2024.

Regardless of whether they are sold in the B2B or B2C sector, the General Product Safety Regulation applies to consumer products, i.e. goods that are intended for consumers. Products that are not intended for consumers and are unlikely to be used by consumers under reasonably foreseeable conditions are not covered. In the European Economic Area (EEA), the term consumer refers to a natural person who buys and uses products for their own (private) use, i.e. not for professional or commercial purposes.

RIEGLER & Co. KG sells its products exclusively in the commercial B2B sector, therefore the information obligations of economic operators with regard to distance sales (Article 19) and the special requirements for providers of online marketplaces (Article 22) do not apply to us.

Apart from this, RIEGLER & Co. KG naturally ensures that the products it sells fulfil the requirements of the General Product Safety Regulation.

We provide product-specific information such as data sheets, instruction manuals and safety data sheets in the download area of our shop

Yours sincerely,

RIEGLER & Co. KG
